THE DEATH RATE

In Assuming Large Proportions in the City of Havana—Insufficient Food Among the Poor.

For many months no adequate knowledge of the conditions of the interior and small towns has been available. But from the chief city of Havana, where the sufferings must be least compared with other portions, almost incredible accounts of the horrors of the famine have been reaching the capital.

It was the regular weekly report of Dr. W. F. Brunner, sanitary inspector of the United States marine hospital service at Havana. It is as follows: The death rate is showing alarming proportions in this city and the deaths from intestinal diseases, due to insufficient food among the poorer classes amounts to about two-fifths of the total deaths. An inspection of a post box known as La Esca was made by me on Thursday, October 14.

"This place has been set aside for the storage of carts of the municipality. There were 500 persons found in and around this building, and of that number over 300 were found lying on the floor, dead and dying. I saw no child under ten years who could be considered in good health. They were invariably suffering from some form of dysentery. The emaciation of their bodies was startling. This place is not a hospital, but simply a place of residence for these people, but a conservative estimate of the death rate there would be about ten per cent. The number is recruited by fresh accessions from the country."

PUBLIC LANDS.

The Military Reservation at Fort Randall in South Dakota Open for Occupancy.

CHAMPAIGN, S. D., Oct. 26.—Long before daylight Monday morning scores of soldiers gathered outside the United States land office and remained there constantly until the office opened for business at 9 o'clock. The occasion was the opening of the military reservation.

For the past two days intending homesteaders have been arriving by train. The land office is in an extraordinary way. Whether the Creek Indians will be paid some of the money on the warrants, or outside parties, who are known to have cashed a large part of them on a premium basis, or whether they will be the subject of a lawsuit, is not known. Secretary Bliss stated Tuesday that while there was about $50,000 of warrants outstanding for the Creek payment they had not been paid. Who holds the warrants was not known, but he said, but the government would not lose a cent.

REPLY OF SPAIN

To the Note of Secretary Sherman Placed in Woodford's Hands.

It is Announced Officially That the Answer is Marked Throughout by an Energetic Tone—The Document May Not Be Published Until Congress Meets.

MADRID, Oct. 27.—The Spanish government refuses to furnish for publication the text of the note of Spain which has been handed to the United States minister here, Gen. Stewart L. Woodford, as an answer to the communication which the general placed in the hands of the duke of Tetuan early in September last, when the latter was minister of foreign affairs, on the subject of the insurrection in the island of Cuba.

The United States minister admits having received Spain's reply to the note of the United States, but he declines to discuss the matter beyond saying that the text of the Spanish answer will be immediately transmitted to Washington.

From other sources it was learned that the officials of the United States legation were engaged Tuesday in translating Spain's answer, and it was reported that the United States minister would be able to Washington Tuesday the full text of the Spanish note.

Although the government of Spain will not discuss the matter beyond the fact that the insurrection in Cuba "receives support from frequent American filibustering expeditions," and that otherwise the rebellion in Cuba would probably not exist. It is hoped by the Spanish government that by granting autonomy to Cuba and the withdrawing of American support of the insurgents the insurrection will shortly be ended.

It is further officially announced that the Spanish note is marked throughout by an energetic tone.

According to the reports in official circles here, the United States minister will confine himself to acknowledging the receipt of the Spanish reply, and after forwarding it to the United States government will request it.

HIGHEST TIDES

In Years, Supplemented by Wind on the Atlantic Coast—Many Buildings at the Summer Resorts Were Damaged by Floods.

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—High tides and higher winds that drove the sea inland have caused an immense amount of damage along the New Jersey and Long Island coast during the past 24 hours. Many buildings erected on the sand at the summer resorts were knocked to pieces and carried out to sea, and coast line railroads have suffered even greater damage by reason of the storm. The highest tides in years, supplemented by wind which blew at the rate of from 35 to 90 miles an hour, prevailed Monday, and when the high water reaches its maximum Tuesday even greater damage is expected unless the gale abates. From down the Long Island coast the heaviest damage is reported.

Cape May, N. J., Oct. 26.—One of the heaviest northeast gales of years has swept the lower Jersey coast and up Delaware bay for the past 24 hours. Many vessels have been stranded and there is an unconfirmed report that a ship went down off shore Monday morning. A fleet is riding at anchor within the harbor, and the water is so inundated that travel to the coast resorts is practically suspended. The tide here was abating somewhat Monday night but the wind is maintaining a velocity of 20 miles. Portions of the board walk have been swept away, as well as cottage porches and fences, and the damage is estimated at thousands of dollars.

From Millville comes the report that the big tides in the Manas river have flooded all the oyster houses and several have been blown down. The Ocean City, Sea Isle and Maurice river branches of the West Jersey railroad have been flooded. Nearly a mile of the Reading tracks have been washed away near Egg Harbor City, and the mail coach was held up Monday by flooded roads.

Millville has been down in the vicinity of Lewis, Del. The schooner Little Falk, Sarah I. Vaughn, H. W. Laws and Annie I. Ponder went ashore on the beach there Sunday night. The crews were safely landed.

The schooner Emma L. Cottingham, from Fall River for Philadelphia, is ashore near Delaware City. She lies on a stone pile wall up the beach.

The schooner Elizabeth Lee, Philadelphia, for Gloucester, Mass., broke from its moorings here held her Monday and drifted on the point of Cape Henlopen. She is in a bad position and may go to pieces at any moment because of her cargo of coal. The crew was taken aboard the tugs. A number of dories and barges are also ashore. At Every other candidate on the Republican ticket is being traded off for Dick, and if necessary the entire ticket will be traded for one vote for him. He is using the same methods he used in the late primary in Carter county. As proof conclusive that he intends to sink the entire Republican ticket in Carter it is only necessary to mention that a circular letter, written in Grayson has been mailed at his instance from Louisville, purporting to come from the State Committee, appealing to the voters of Carter county to maintain the majority of last year in the present race of Clerk of the Court of Appeals and in the Judicial race. In these letters not one word is said in favor of the county ticket.

OUR NEIGHBORS.

After waiting in vain for the completion of the new school building at Ceredo, Prof. Anderson opened school last Monday in two church buildings.

The thing can't be hid. Prosperity can never come by raising prices while you make money scarcer. Oh, no, son'the men who say it don't believe one word of it.—Athens Post.

Norfolk and Western passenger train was wrecked near Welch, W. Va. The engine, mail car and baggage car went down an embankment about twelve feet turning over on their sides. Engineer A. J. Mays was killed and Frank Biggs had his right hand cut off. Mail Clerk Bowles was slightly injured. No passengers were hurt. The accident was caused by a broken rail.

Catlettsburg is now in telephonic communication with almost the entire Big Sandy valley, the line to Louisa having been completed. From that point up the valley the connection is by way of Blaine, reaching the Big Sandy at River, where connection is made with the line from Myrtle to Paintsville, on up the valley to Pikeville, and west to Salyersville. This will prove a great boon to the business interests of this part of the State.—Central Methodist.

"We are glad that at last the locks and dams are to be put in the river sufficient to at least give us slack water to Warfield."—Martin County Gazette.

We fear your rejoicing will not do much good towards accomplishing this result. Can't you stir up your people to assist in the effort for appropriations? They have all failed to respond so far.

Judge Barr has issued rules against Deputy United States Marshals, W. R. Hopkins, of Pike County, and John C. Morgan, of Jackson County, to explain why they should not be removed from office. They have been summoned to appear before the court Saturday morning, when they will be given a hearing. They were recently appointed by Marshal James.

Hopkins is charged with having brought a prisoner to this city on commissioner's mittimus, but having failed to place him in jail. Morgan is accused of writing Jack Gibson a letter asking him to work in a still so that the still could be located and raided. Gibson was working at the place when the still was raided and was arrested and brought to this city. He showed the court the letter said to have been written by Morgan.—Louisville Post.

PAINTSVILLE.

Last Thursday night W. J. Woods' barn containing hay, fodder and horses, and some fat hogs, was burned. His house was set on fire at the same time but was saved with slight injury. Woods procured the arrest of his father-in-law, Sanford Weston, on the charge that there was already much ill-feeling between the two men and the proof seemed to be very meager.

Charlie Collins was lodged in the jail last Saturday for stealing Drip Collins' horse the night before. On Monday examination was waived, before J. H. McFadden, and in default of bail will remain in jail until court.

Mrs. D. J. Conley, of Flat Gap, is in town on her return from Pike county, where she has been visiting her mother.

Our Republican managers, aided by two standing Republican candidates from other counties, have charge of a brass band at somebody's expense and are speaking at the cross roads and school houses trying to whoop the boys up for Andy Auxler. Next election these same fellows will try to whoop the boys for themselves.

It is said here on good authority, that these managers will flood this district next Friday with that dirty, cowardly, mean sheet said to be printed here, but purporting to be printed elsewhere, called Helen Blazes. The honest people of both parties may expect the most dastardly lies to be published in this sheet or some other dirty sheet, on Mr. Samuel J. Salyer, candidate for Circuit Judge.

The boast of the Republicans up here is that these stories will appear so late that Salyer cannot explain. No sensible man should pay any attention to such lies or schemes to do any one.

ROCKFELLOW.

BLAINE.

George Wilson, aged 16, and Lizzie Willy, 17, embarked on the sea of matrimony last Thursday morning. We wish them joy, peace and happiness.

The teachers' association at this place was a failure.
Miss Janie Chandler, who has been here with relations, has gone home.

Miss Sallie Chapman, of Durbin, is visiting her cousin, Mrs. T. O. Johnson.
Mr. Deal, of Willard, paid a flying visit to his brother.

M. G. Sengraves, wife and little daughter, paid a visit to friends on Cherokee Sunday.
Bascum Sturgell wheeled from Wilber last Sunday and spent the day with friends here.

L. Edwards and wife, of Sistersville, are here among relatives.
Miss Lena Walter paid a flying visit to homefolks Saturday.

Miss Pearl Walters is visiting her aunt, Mrs. Judge Woods, of Webbville.
Prosperity has struck this place in full blast. Potatoes are only 85 cents per bushel, meat, 12-15 cents per pound and corn can't be had at any price. Other necessities likewise and no money, to be sure, or work to be found. Guess we've struck a veritable Klondike.

We presume the Republicans of Lawrence think they are doing great things with some of their candidates, especially Dr. Osburn. How people can hold him up as their standard of education, we are at a loss to know. If he really is their standard, their standard is not very elevated. We know, of an actual experience a young man of our town had with him. At that time he did not have "Dr" to his name. He was very anxious to obtain a certificate and knowing his own weakness, obtained the State questions and brought them to the young man we spoke of, to get them answered for him, offering to pay him five dollars for his work, should he obtain a second class certificate in the Floyd county examination. Well, to make a long story short, he obtained a 2nd class certificate. Is this the man to superintend our schools and set an example before our children? No; a thousand times no!

The Republican committee and county candidates met at the Odd fellows hall Monday and the sum of fifteen dollars was appropriated for the coming election, the most of which was sent to George Cr.

H. H. Gannell is about choked and his coat is almost thread-bare, because of so many pulling him this way and that, exacting promises of every kind. The people need some one in the Senate who will do some good. If we only needed the seat filled, we could purchase a wax figure or fix up a dummy of most any kind to fill the office of "do nothing" and it would fill the place admirably and this course would be a great deal cheaper. But we need a wide awake, up to date man; one familiar with the law and who is not afraid to open his mouth. A man can be a thorough good fellow and yet to be the poorest Senator under the sun.

Once upon a time, we had our town incorporated and had officers, and order; but when our law-maker came home, instead of seeing that law and order prevailed, he took every cursing, obscene, talking, drunk man and hid them in his ware room or smoke house, any where that he could hide them, so the marshal could not arrest them thus upholding such disgraceful conduct; and now it is next to impossible to hold church or prayer-meeting service after night.

We want a man to enforce the laws or allow them to be enforced, as well as make them.
Now, give three cheers for Johnson and vote for a man who, though young, will serve us right.

WELL-MATCHED PAIR.

A Moral Drawn From the Story of Ananias and Sapphira.

The Whiteness Ever Told Delivered in Deeds as Black as Perdition—Falsehoods Do Not Depend Solely on the Tongue—A Look at Movement, a Manner, May Serve the Purpose.

Dr. Talmage's text Sunday was Acts 5:1-10: "A certain man named Ananias, with Sapphira, his wife, sold a possession, etc."

A well-matched pair, alike in ambition and in falsehood. Ananias and Sapphira. They wanted a reputation for great beneficence, and they sold all their property, pretending to put the entire proceeds in the charity fund, while they put much of it in their own pocket. There was no necessity that they gave all their property away, but they wanted the reputation of doing so. Ananias first lied about it and dropped down dead. Then Sapphira followed him, and she dropped dead. The two falsehoods were a warning to all ages of sacrificing the truth.

There are thousands of ways of telling a lie. A man's whole life may be a falsehood, and yet never with his lips may he falsify once. There is a way of uttering falsehood by look, by manner, as well as by lip. There are persons who are guilty of dishonesty of speech and then afterward say "may be," calling it a white lie, when no lie is that color. The whitest lie ever told was as black as perdition. There are those given to dishonesty of speech that they do not know when they are lying. With some it is an acquired sin, and with others it is a natural infirmity. There are those whom you will recognize as born liars. Their whole life, from cradle to grave, is filled up with vice of speech. Misrepresentation and prevarication are as natural to them as the infantile diseases, and are a sort of moral crop or spiritual scurvy.

Then there are those who in after life have opportunity of developing this evil and they go from deception to deception, and from class to class, until they are regularly graduated liars. At times the air in our cities is filled with falsehood, and lies cluster around the mechanic's hammer, the doctor's stethoscope, the merchant's yardstick, and some times sit in the door of churches. They are called by some fabrication and they are called by some fiction. You might call them subterfuge, or deceit, or romance, or flattery, or misrepresentation, or delusion, but you know nothing to be gained by covering up a God-defying sin with a lexicographer's blanket. I shall call them in plainest vernacular, lies. They may be divided into agricultural, commercial, mechanical, social and ecclesiastical.

First of all I speak of agricultural falsehoods. There is something in the presence of natural objects that has a tendency to make one pure. The trees never issue false stock. The wheat stalks are always true. The corn never more or less in the night, not paying for the place they occupy. Corn shocks never make false assignment. Mountain brooks are always current. The gold of the wheat fields is never counterfeit. But while the tendency of agricultural life is to make one honest, honesty is not the characteristic of all who come to the city markets from the country districts. You hear the creaking of the dishonest farm wagon in almost every street of our great cities—a farm wagon in which there is not one honest spoke or one truthful rivet, from tongue to tail board. Again and again has domestic economy in our great cities foundered on the farmer's rick. When New York and Washington sit down and weep over their sins, let Westchester county and the neighboring counties around this capital sit down and weep over theirs.

The tendency in all rural districts is to suppose that sins and transgressions cluster in our great cities, but citizens and merchants long ago learned that it is not safe to calculate from the character of the apples on the top of the farmer's barrel what is the character of the apples all the way down toward the bottom. Any of our citizens and merchants have learned that it is always safe to see the farmer measure the barrel of beets. Milk cans are not always honest. There are those who, in country life, seem to think they have a right to overreach grain dealers and merchants of all styles. They think it is more honorable to raise corn than to deal in corn. The producer sometimes practically says to the merchant: "You get your money easily, anyhow." Does he get it easily? While the farmer sleeps, and he may go to sleep conscious of the fact that his corn and rye are all the time progressing and adding to his fortune or his livelihood, the merchant tries to sleep, while conscious of the fact that at that moment the ship may be driving on the rock, or a wave sweeping over the hurricane deck spoiling his goods, or the speculators may be plotting a monetary revolution, or the burglars may be at that moment at his money safe, or the fire may have kindled on the very block where his store stands. Easy, is it? Let those who get their living in the quiet farm and barn take the place of one of our city merchants and see whether it is so easy. It is hard enough to have the hands blistersed with outdoor work, but it is harder with mental anxieties to have the brain consumed. God help the merchants. And do not let those who live in country life come to the conclusion that all the dishonesties belong to city life.

It is pass on to consider commercial lies. There are those who apologize for deviations from the right and for practical deception by saying it is commercial custom. In other words, a lie by multiplication becomes a virtue. There are large fortunes gathered in which there is not one drop of the sweat of unrequited toil, and not one spark of bad temper flashes from the bronze bracket, and there is not one drop of needlewoman's heart blood on the crimson plush, while there are other fortunes gathered in which it may be said that on every drop-knob and on every figure of the carpet and on every wall there is the mark of dishonesty. What if the hand wrung by toll and blistered until the skin comes off should be placed on the exquisite wall paper, leaving its mark of blood-fingered and a thumb or, or if in the right the man should be aroused from his slumber again and again by his own conscience, getting himself up on elbow and crying out in the darkness, "who is there?"

There are large fortunes upon which God's favor comes down, and it is just as honest and just as Christian to be affluent as it is to be poor. In many a house there is a blessing on every potted plant and on every seed, and on every transcribed window, and the joy that flashes in the lights, and that showers in the music and that dances in the quick feet of the children patterning through the hall has in it the favor of God and the approval of man. And there are thousands and tens of thousands of merchants who, from the first day they sold a yard of cloth, or a skin of butter, have maintained their integrity. They were born honest, they will live honest, and they will die honest. But you and I know that there are in commercial life those who are guilty of great dishonesties of speech. A merchant says: "I am selling these goods at less than cost." Is he getting for these goods a price inferior to that which he paid for them? Then he has spoken the truth. Is he getting more? Then he lies. A merchant says: "I paid $25 for this article." Is that the price he paid for it? All right. But suppose he paid for it $25 instead of $20? Then he lies.

But there are just as many falsehoods before the counter as there are behind the counter. A customer comes in and asks: "How much is this article?" "It is five dollars." "I can get it for four dollars somewhere else." Then the merchant tells the customer where else, or did he say that just for the purpose of getting it cheap by depreciating the value of the goods? If so, he lied. There are just as many falsehoods before the counter as there are behind it. A man unrolls upon the counter a bale of handkerchiefs. The customer says: "Are these all silk?" "Yes." "No cotton in them?" "No cotton in them." Are those handkerchiefs all silk? Then the merchant is telling the truth. Is there any cotton in them? Then he lied. Moreover he defrauds himself, for this customer coming in will after a while find out that he has been defrauded, and the next time he comes to the merchant's store he will look up at that sign and say: "No I won't go in there; that's the place where I got those handkerchiefs." First, the merchant insulted God, and secondly, he picked his own pocket.

Who would take the responsibility of saying how many falsehoods were yesterday told by hardware men, and clothiers, and lumbermen, and tobacconists, and jewelers, and importers, and shippers, and dealers in furniture, and dealers in coal, and dealers in groceries? Lies about bundles, about sardines, about harness, about shoes, about hats, about coats, about shavers, about tools, about horses, about lands, about everything. I arraign commercial falsehood as one of the crying sins of our time.

I pass on to speak of mechanical falsehoods. Among the artisans are those upon whom we are dependent for the houses in which we live, the garments which we wear, the food upon which we live. The vast majority of them are, so far as I know them, men who speak the truth, and they are upright, and many of them are foremost in great philanthropies and in churches; but that they all do not belong to that category is shown by the fact that there is a great demand for labor in it is not so easy for such men to keep their obligations, because they may miscalculate in regard to the weather, or they may not be able to get the help they anticipated in their enterprise, or I am speaking now of those who promise to do that which they know they will not be able to do. They say they will come on Monday; they do not come until Wednesday. They say they will come on Tuesday; they do not come until Saturday. They say they will have the job done in 10 days; they do not get it done before 30. And when a man becomes irritated and will not stand it any longer, then they go and work for him a day or two and keep the job open until they can get some one else to do it. They are not dishonest, but they are not honest. "Oh," they say, "it is of no importance; everybody expects to be deceived and disappointed." There is a voice of thunder sounding against such a saying, and let us and the shears, saying: "All liars shall have their place in the lake that burns with fire and brimstone."

I pass on to speak of social lies. How much of society is insincere? You hardly know what to believe. They send their regards; you do not exactly know whether it is an expression of the heart or an external civility. They ask you to come to their house; you hardly know whether they really want you to come. We are all accustomed to take a discount of what we hear. "Not at home" very often means too lazy to dress. I was reading of a lady who said she had told her last fashionable lie. There was a knock at her door and she sent word down, "No one here." The lady who had told the lie said to her: "Mrs. So-and-so is dead." "Is it possible?" she said. "Yes," and she died in great anguish of mind; she wanted to see you so very much; she had something very important to disclose to you in her last hour; and she sent three times to-day, but found you absent every time. Then this woman bethought herself that she had had a bargain with her neighbor that when the long-protracted sickness was about to come to an end she would appear at her bedside and take the secret that was to be disclosed. And she had said she was "Not at home."

Social life is strewn through with insincerity. They apologize for the fact that the furnace is out; they have not had any fire in it all winter. They apologize for the fact on their table; they never live any better. They deary their most luxurious entertainments to win a shower of approval from you. They point at a picture on the wall as the work of "one of the old masters." They say it is a heirloom in the family. It hangs on the wall of a castle. A duke gave it to their grandfather! People that will lie about nothing else will lie about a picture. On small income we want the world to believe we are affluent, and society to think we are rich, and with chest and counterfeit and shams. How few people are natural! Frigidly sails around, iceberg grinding against iceberg. You must not laugh outright; that is vulgar. You must smile. You must not dash quickly across the room; that is vulgar. You must glide. Much of society is a round of bows and grins and grimaces and simperings and namby-pambyism, a whole world of which is not worth one good, honest round of laughter. From such a hollow scene the tortured guest retires at the close of the evening, assuring the host that he has enjoyed himself. Society is become so contorted and deformed in this respect that a mountain cabin where the rusties gather at a quiting or an apple-picking, has in it more good cheer than all the freed refrigerators of the metropolis.

I pass on to speak of ecclesiastical lies, those which are told for the advancement or retarding of a church or sect. It is hardly worth your while to ask an extreme Calvinist what an Arminian believes. He will tell you that an Arminian believes that man can save himself. An Arminian believes no such thing. It is hardly worth your while to ask a Baptist what a Baptist believes. He will tell you that a Baptist believes that immersion is necessary for salvation. A Baptist does not believe any such thing. It is hardly worth your while to ask a man who very much hates Presbyterianism what a Presbyterian believes. He will tell you that a Presbyterian believes that there are infants in hell a span long, and that very phraseology has come down from generation to generation in the Christian church. There never was a Presbyterian who believed that. "Oh," you say, "I heard some Presbyterian minister 30 years ago say so." You did not. There never was a man who believed that, there never will be a man who will believe that. And yet from boyhood I have heard that particular slander against a Christian church going down through the community.

Then, how often is it that there are misrepresentations on the part of individual churches in regard to other churches—especially if a church comes to great prosperity. As long as a church is in poverty, and the singing is poor, and all the surroundings are decrepit, and the congregation are so hardly tested in life as their pastor goes with elbows out, then there will always be Christian people in churches who say: "What a pity! what a pity! But let the day of prosperity come to a Christian church, and let the music be triumphant, and let there be vast assemblages, and then there will be even ministers of the Gospel critical and denunciatory and full of misrepresentation and falsification, giving the impression to the outside world that they do not believe in the church because it is not ground in their corn. Oh, my friends, let us in all departments of life stand back from deception.

But some one says: "The deception that I practice is so small that it does not amount to anything." Ah, my friends, it does amount to a great deal. You say: "When I deceive, it is only about a case of needles, or a box of buttons, or a row of pins." But the article may be so small you can put it in your vest pocket, but the sin is as big as the pyramids, and the echo of your dishonesty will reverberate through the mountains of eternity. There is no such thing as small sin. They are all vast and stupendous, because they will all have to come before the inspection in the Day of Judgment. You may boast yourself of having made a fine bargain—a sharp bargain. You may carry out what the Bible says in regard to that man who went in to make a purchase and deceived his neighbor, and then he hid away the splendid bargain he had made. It is naught, it is naught, said the buyer; but when he is gone his way, then he boasteth. It may seem to the world a sharp bargain, but the deceiving angel was down in the ponderous costumes of eternity. "Mr. So-and-so, doing business on Pennsylvania avenue, or Broadway, or Chestnut street, or State street, told me lie."

May God extirpate from society all the ecclesiastical lies, and all the lies, and all the commercial lies, and all the agricultural lies, and make every man to speak the truth of his neighbor. My friends, let us make our lives correspond to what we say. Let us not say what we do not mean, and let us not mean what we do not say. Let us not say what we do not mean, and let us not mean what we do not say. Let us not say what we do not mean, and let us not mean what we do not say.

AN UNWISE POLICY.

In America People Leave Nothing for Their Children to Spend.

In America it is the custom—very nearly the universal one—for parents to spend upon the luxuries and pleasures of the family life the whole income, says the North American Review. The children are educated according to this standard of expenditure and are accustomed to all its privileges. They are brought up to believe that they must set up households for themselves—almost invariably upon a very different scale from the one to which they have been used. To the American parent this seems only a natural downfall. They remark cheerfully that they themselves began in a small way and it will do the young people no harm to acquire a similar experience, forgetting that in most cases their children have been educated to a much higher standard of ease than that of their own early life. They do not consider it obligatory to leave anything to their children to do. They have used all their own life-time—let their children do the same. The results of the system are crystallized in the American saying: "There are but three generations from shirt sleeves to shirt sleeves." The man who acquires wealth spends what he makes. His children, brought up in luxury, struggle unsuccessfully against conditions to which they are unused, and the grandchildren begin in their shirt sleeves to toil for the wealth dissipated by the two preceding generations.

STARBORNS are the rabbits of the feathered world in point of multiplication, frequently producing more than 30 young ones in a season, three or four broods of six or seven each being not unusual. In six years the progeny of a single pair of starborns will amount to millions, as evidence the alarming rapidity with which the United States, New Zealand and Australia are now infested, the number originally taken over by emigrants being very small. Complaints from American, Australian and New Zealand agriculturists of the ravages committed by the birds are even more bitter than those of English farmers.

HEART disease carried off a Brooklyn man the other night. An old friend was so shocked at the news that he purchased poison and killed himself. His sister then went to the druggist who sold her brother the deadly dose and gave him a piece of her mind. The druggist, who was a Jew, was much more excited and dropped dead. People who believe in the rule of three may be interested in this singular train of fatalities.

ANDREW CANNON came to this country from Scotland a poor lad. His new Scottish estate, Skibo, contains 20,000 acres, with a frontage of 14 miles on Dornoch firth, a fine salmon river, besides several smaller streams, one of the best grouse moors in Scotland and a fine modernized castle, the traditions of which run back to the beginnings of the country. Scotland is a fine land for a rich man to come back to.

FORMER Queen Ellipokalani has been offered $2,000 to preside over a carnival at Wichita, Kan., for three days in 1895. The invitation was extended through Dr. Martin, formerly of Wichita, who was the queen's physician in Honolulu.

MICHAELMAS geese take the place of Thanksgiving turkeys in England, but the demand for the birds has been steadily decreasing of late years. Either the taste for goose or the observance of gastronomic holidays is dying out.

ROSE AMELIA, countess of Wilbair, is dead. She and her sister, the wife of Gen. Adam Bledau, are relatives of the novelist, Eugene Sue, are said to have been the originals of Rose and Blanche in "The Wandering Jew."

It is said that Secretary of Agriculture Wilson, in his annual report, will ask Congress to provide for the appointment of persons to represent the agricultural department at the important foreign legations.
